1.0 BACKGROUND

- 1.1 The English Devolution White Paper was published on 16 December 2024. The White Paper sets out the Government's plans for changes to local government in England to extend devolution powers and funding, and proposes a redistribution of powers from central to local government, including extending powers to Mayoral authorities. It includes a programme of local government reorganisation for two-tier areas.
- 1.2 An English Devolution Bill is intended to be brought forward by the Government.

2.0 PROPOSALS

- 2.1 The Government wishes to see universal coverage in England of 'Strategic Authorities' which should be a number of councils working together, covering areas that people recognise and work in. Many places already have Combined Authorities that serve this role e.g. the East Midlands Combined Authority. The Government intends to continue to develop new Strategic Authorities collaboratively and in partnership with places. However, in order to ensure that citizens across England benefit from devolution, and to ensure the effective running of public services, they will legislate for a ministerial directive. This will allow the creation of those Strategic Authorities where local leaders have, after due time has been allowed, not been able to make progress. This, combined with plans to support local government reorganisation, will align public service boundaries with Strategic Authorities and will ultimately lead to fewer elected members.
- 2.2 The White Paper states that all remaining two-tier areas and smaller unitary councils will be expected to develop proposals for reorganisation, with all councils working to develop unitary proposals in the best interests of the whole area as swiftly as possible. The Government will be writing to council leaders to formally invite proposals and will detail its criteria for sustainable unitary structure and how and when to submit proposals. The overall timetable for the proposals set out in the White Paper remains to be confirmed, although it is understood those areas wishing to be part of what the Government is calling its priority programme will be invited to submit proposals by March 2025, with remaining areas to submit their plans by autumn 2025. The government is asking to hear, by 10 January, from those areas who want to be part of the Priority Programme, and for those councils with elections, to advise whether they wish to request a cancellation of the elections due in May 2025.
- 2.3 This deadline is extremely tight and it is understood that the Priority Programme is for those who are ready and able to progress Devolution and Local Government Reorganisation, and where there is a clear and shared consensus for any proposals.
- 2.4 The Government is clear that reorganisation should not delay devolution and plans for both should be complementary. They intend to work with areas to deliver an ambitious first wave of reorganisation in this Parliament. New unitary councils must be the right size to achieve efficiencies, improve capacity and withstand financial shocks. For most areas this will mean creating councils with a population of 500,000 or more but there may be exceptions to ensure new structures make sense for an area, including for devolution, and decisions will be on a case-by-case basis.

3.0 INITIAL RESPONSE TO PROPOSALS

- 3.1 The Council welcomes the opportunity for devolution of powers and funding from central government to the regions as a good way to secure investment and stimulate economic growth within our communities.
- 3.2 The Council, along with other district and borough councils in Leicestershire, believes that a population of 500,000 would be too big to be able to provide good local services to local people, especially in rural areas. The Council wants to make sure local government remains local.
- 3.3 Local government in Leicestershire works. No single authority is failing. North West Leicestershire is a well-run council with a strong financial track record and the Council will be working hard to ensure that it gets the best for its residents.
- 3.4 The Council would like to work collaboratively with other partners to develop proposals that work for Leicester, Leicestershire and Rutland and that make sense to local people.
- 3.5 Reports will be submitted to Corporate Scrutiny and Cabinet as necessary to enable detailed consideration of the White Paper and proposed next steps prior to any proposals being submitted to Government.

Policies and other considerations, as appropriate
Council Priorities:	<ul> <li>Planning and regeneration</li> <li>Communities and housing</li> <li>Clean, green and Zero Carbon</li> <li>A well-run council</li> </ul>
Policy Considerations:	None directly arising from the report.
Safeguarding:	None directly arising from the report.
Equalities/Diversity:	There are no equality implications arising from the recommendations in this report. In developing any proposals for a unitary structure regard will be given to equality implications and how the proposals might affect those groups with protected characteristics.
Customer Impact:	None directly arising from the report although depending on the future structure of local government the services customers may be impacted. This will need to be given detailed consideration.
Economic and Social Impact:	None directly arising from the report.
Environment, Climate Change and Zero Carbon:	None directly arising from the report.
Consultation/Community/Tenant Engagement:	Local people should be engaged in shaping proposals that will impact on how they receive services in the future.

Risks:	That no consensus on local government arrangements for Leicester, Leicestershire and Rutland will reached and a solution could be imposed on the Council by Central Government.
	Local Services could be impacted negatively. Financially, the biggest drain on council budgets is with social care. Putting this huge, important and costly service in the same authority as other services that are important to local people – things like street cleaning, anti-social behaviour, parks, leisure centres – could put these other services at risk as the cost of providing social care increases.
